SENTENCED IN BOSTON COURTS

Portsmouth Man and Woman Sent To Reformatory and States Prison

Mrs. Stella Vellelo of this city who has been going under the name of Mary Jones and Gladys Brooks has been sentenced by Judge Sanderson in the Suffolk court at Boston to the Reformatory for Women at Sherborn. Mrs. Vellelo was arrested in this city two weeks ago by the Boston police charged with receiving stolen goods and acting with Gladys Brooks as fences for the two men, Jones, alias Freeman and Samuel Mayers, alias Wilson, was sentenced for not less than three or more than five years to State prison for breaking and entering houses at Dorchester. Jones was located in this city for singer

A RARE MUSICAL TREAT

The Grand Concert to be given by the World's Famous "Bronze Melba," supported by Whittman's Fest Orchestra, 12 pieces, and "Star Brass Quartette," on Monday, Nov. 27, will be a rare musical treat. The Bronze Melba is one of the world's greatest concert soloists and Portsmouth is indeed fortunate in having a chance to hear such a famous singer.

DIED WHILE LEADING CHARGE

Ensign Hovey Was Shot Down and Then Dispatched by Spear and Bolo Slashes

Details received by Mrs. Henry Emerson Hovey, from the enlisted men in the Philippines, who were present when Ensign Charles Hovey, U. S. N., lost his life attest to the bravery of the young officer.

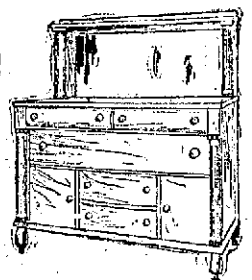

First wounded by the scattering charge of a volley of gunshot, Ensign Hovey was borne to the ground by the onward rush of thirty barbaric Moros who with spears and bolos opened his body with twenty four wounds that sapped his life's blood. From the moment when an enemy was imminent the young ensign placed himself at the head of his small detachment of troops and immediately in the vantage point of danger.

The outfit was at Zamzanga, a Philippine station when Governor Finley was informed that Mandang, a Moro chief who for thirty years has fired the spark of hatred against invading Caucasians, was again on the rampage. It was necessary to check the depredations committed by his semi-fanatic followers. Ensign Hovey and a small detachment were ordered to proceed to the Basilan island on the Pampanga. He landed with Sailors Harrison, Hetherington, Catherwood, Fred H. McGuire and Volz, a Filipino guide and a Moro scout, a fighting strength of six white men and two half-breeded blacks. After eight days of desultory scouting they at 5 o'clock on the morning of Sept. 24, approached a collection of shacks in the settlement of La Purp. The flash of a metallic helmet on a disappearing Moro apprised them of the proximity of the marauding settlers.

Ensign Hovey dispatched Harrison and Volz to guard the north side of the shacks from the escape of Moros on the south side. Ensign Hovey, Hetherington, Catherwood, the Filipino and Moro rushed upon the shacks from the front. Ensign Hovey twenty strides ahead of the little attacking detachment. When within a few paces of the object point a volley rang out from the shacks. Ensign Hovey dropped in his tracks. The Moros rushed out from the shacks and before the ensign could successfully attain his feet he was dispatched by the thrusts of spear and the slashes of bolo. In the hand-to-hand conflict that ensued Catherwood nearly met the fate of Ensign Hovey. His condition is still dangerous. McGuire was speared in the left arm and Hetherington sustained two severe wounds. The guide was killed and the scout later had his left arm amputated above the elbow to escape the infection caused by gunpowder. Harrison and Volz alone escaped injury. The letters say that at least thirty Moros attacked the little party. When Harrison and Volz came running through the Coogan's grass the Moros, suspected the presence of a detachment and they fled. Were it not for the surprise occasioned by the arrival of Harrison and Volz it is probably that the entire outfit would have been wiped out. Seven Moros were killed. Some weeks after the fight a Moro walked into the settlement with the head of Mandang. He was presented a reward of 100 pesos. Mrs. Hovey has received two letters from sailors who participated in the battle with her son. His body is now en route to this city for burial beside his father, Henry Emerson Hovey, long rector of St. John's Episcopal church, in the little graveyard beside the church on Church hill.

DROPPED BOMBS FROM AEROPLANES

Tripoli, Nov. 21.—A stiff outpost fight took place yesterday morning as a result of which, according to Italian reports the Turks were forced to retreat, leaving nine dead on the field. They carried off their wounded. Later in the day the Turks twice returned to the offensive. The Italian Grenadiers and artillery replied to their attacks and again repulsed the enemy of whom twenty were killed. The Italian did not suffer any loss. Five aeroplanes which had been sent out to reconnoitre returned to camp and reported that there had been a change in the Turkish position. They had succeeded in dropping some bombs inside the Turkish camp, which the observers in the military balloon were able to see was destroyed. At the same time the Italian armored cruiser Carlo Alberto bombarded the village of Amrus and the fort of Hennis a few miles from Tripoli.

A lively combat also occurred at Derna, where the Turks advanced to the attack under cover of a fog. The whole of the Italian forces went into action and succeeded in repulsing the enemy. There is no change in the situation at Benghazi and Home.

BITS OF SPORT

Princeton has beaten Yale in baseball, track, hockey and football in 1911 something never before accomplished by Tiger athletes.

It looks just now as if the Harvard and Yale game next Saturday will be a punting duel, and that the victor will fall to the team who has the fortunes of war were against the best kicker and takes advantage of any slips which usually go with a punting contest. The lines of both teams are much superior to the backs beaten on two such plays when play-which means very little ground will be gained by straight line bucking and neither eleven has been successful enough with the forward pass to gain much ground with that play.

The result of last Saturday's football games decided two things. One is that intercollegiate football champions of the season of 1911. Second Sam White joins the select group of players whose individual efforts have been responsible for their team winning the title.

If "Mique" Donlin should be traded back to the New York Giants, and he may be, Boston fans will let out a loud yell, as Mike is a big favorite with the club fans. His trusty club, the lowly Tennessee, to several victories last season, and his loss goes to the heart of the team.

Curry Davis has fallen into a good trap by getting the manager's berth with the Cleveland Indians. The club after a season at last season finished with a rush landed in third place. On the pay roll of the club are some wonderful young tail players and these men are expected to show even better ability next season under such a hustling leader as Davis.

Next season is very likely to see in addition to minor changes in the football rules the shortening of the necessary distance to be gained for a first down when the ball is within 20 or 25 yards of the goal. The past two seasons have shown conclusively that 10 yards is too much for a man unassisted by his team mates to be compelled to gain in three tries, when the shortening of the distance between the ball and the goal line has brought the defensive backs up close behind the rush line.

Coach Cavanaugh of the Dartmouth football team was certainly followed by hard luck this fall. His charges played great football against Princeton and were beaten on a fluke. At the Stadium last Saturday the Green team put up another grand battle, but were defeated.

IDENTIFICATION POSTAGE

Special Registry Stamp of 10-Cent Denomination to be Used

The November issue of the U. S. postal guide contains some interesting and instructive information. It contains one notice of an amendment to the postal laws and regulations which reads now that the department has prepared a special registry stamp of 10 cent denomination which will be recognized by postmasters and employees of the postal service for paying of the fee in registered letter, domestic or foreign; but ordinary postage stamps may still be used to prepay the registry fine when registry stamps are not available. All postmasters and especially those of the fourth class offices are cautioned to observe strictly the paragraphs which provide that postmasters shall report promptly to the department the death insolvency or other disability of one or more of their sureties and that failure to do so will be deemed sufficient cause for removal.

It also contains matter relative to receipts for postage stamps and other stamped paper international orders on Hong Kong, China dispatches and much of interest to post office employees.

A new 10 cent stamp of special design intended to identify mail matter to which it is affixed as being registered has been prepared and the postmaster general directs its use for that purpose still permitting the use of ordinary stamps for the purpose when registry stamps are not available. It is a rectangle on end 2 3/8 by 7/8 of an inch and is light blue.

A FALSE REPORT

Suncook Valley Railroad Not Released to the B. & M.

A Boston paper published a story today to the effect that an agreement had been reached between the Boston and Maine under President Mellen and the Suncook Valley railroad by which a lease at a reduced rate would be made by the latter to the former. This story was republished without credit by a local paper. The truth of this story meets with unqualified denial from officials of the Suncook Valley railroad, who point out that as no conference has been held since the last adjourned meeting, when a committee was appointed to make other arrangements for the operation of the Suncook Valley railroad, and that nothing can be settled except by vote of the stockholders. Besides no offer has been made except that by President Mellen which was simply that he would recommend to the Boston and Maine directors that Concord and Montreal stock be exchanged one on share for three of the Suncook Valley road. This offer was refused and the committee was appointed which is to report at a further adjournment, which is to Nov. 24.

The story from the Boston paper purports that an agreement has been practically arrived at since last Saturday N. P. Hunt, clerk of the Suncook Valley railroad corporation, was seen last night and stated to a reporter that there was absolutely no foundation for the report as far as the Suncook Valley railroad was concerned. He stated:

"At the last adjourned meeting of the stockholders of the Suncook Valley railroad the letters of Mr. Ten-nant to President Mellen and President Mellen's reply to the same were submitted to the stockholders. After consideration of the situation a vote was passed by the stockholders in favor of structing the committee on new Modern Missions."

and Maine and President Kimball of the Concord and Montreal with a view to ascertain if any arrangement could be made for the operation of the Suncook Valley railroad by either of the said roads at the expiration of the present lease Jan. 1 next, and if no such arrangement could be made to ascertain what other arrangement could be made for the operation of the road and report at an adjourned meeting which is to be held Nov. 24.

"Before this vote was passed a letter was read from Mr. Kimball stating that President Mellen would recommend to the directors of the Boston and Maine to give one share of Concord and Montreal stock for three shares of the Suncook Valley railroad stock and upon that a vote was passed declining the offer.

"The committee and no authority to close any contract for a lease or the operation of the road, but to report the result of their negotiations to the stockholders of the Suncook Valley railroad at the adjourned meeting."

After the interview with Judge Hunt a member of the committee appointed by the Suncook Valley railroad was seen, and he declared that no conference has been held as yet with the officials of the Boston and Maine nor with those of the Concord and Montreal.

JOINT MEETING OF MINISTERS.

There will be a joint meeting of the Portsmouth and Dover Ministers' Association held in the Central Avenue Baptist church at Dover, on Monday, Nov. 27. Discussions will be held on various subjects. WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 22, 1911

The last few weeks before Christmas move about twice as fast as any other part of the year for the shopper who has the manana habit. The surest way to save time and to give each day its real value is to buy today the things that are sure to be needed between now and December 25.

Now that we are on the eve of another municipal campaign, it is not about time that the old political war horse, Ezra Towle, was heard from in matters pertinent to the local campaign. His timely advice might be of benefit to some of the aspirants for office.

The twenty-fifth anniversary of the Boston Press club was celebrated on Tuesday evening at Hotel Somerset, Boston, and was a notable gathering. President Hennessey had arranged a fine program of speakers and the occasion will long be remembered by those fortunate enough to be present. Newspaper men need a little enjoyment as well as other professional people.

That the old soldiers who served in the war of the rebellion keep a warm place in their hearts for the nurses who cared for them so faithfully in the civil war is very often to be seen. One of the veterans has recently given fifty thousand dollars toward a half-million dollar monument to be erected in Washington to the memory of the nurses. Let us hope the monument may take the shape of a home or hospital or some institution that will help humanity. Not a useless pile of stone.

When the fighting machine poked her stem up to the dry dock, escorted by a fleet of tugs, aided by a flood tide, the gates of the basin swung open. The gray monster, which towered high above her puffing, smoke-belching escort, was nosed into the waiting slip, and the massive gates, built to stand the pressure of 35 feet of water, were closed behind her.—Boston Herald.

The above illustrates the way that the battleship Utah had to be docked at the Charlestown navy yard. Quite a striking contrast to that of the armored cruiser Washington coming in from sea and docking at the Portsmouth yard without the aid of a single tug, and returning to sea in the same manner.

AMONG OUR EXCHANGES

Justice for the Capital

All the people of the entire country should, and those who think and have anything of national pride do, desire that good care should be taken of our National Capital. Congress pays half of the expense of doing the business of the city, the taxpayers of Washington the other half. The people all over the country are willing to pay their share toward making of Washington the best governed city in the world and as good as the best in all of its appointments. What is paid out of the national treasury for the good of Washington is not or it should not be paid grudgingly. Being, as we are, one of the greatest patrons in the world, we should have a national capital that would attract the admiration of the world and that would be a source of pride to all Americans. It is that now, but if there has been anything left undone that would beautify the city, that would add to its sanitary conditions, that would make it a model city for its homes and for the character of its local government, it should be done. The country will not stop to count the cost provided what is appropriated is judiciously expended. There may be men in Congress who would cut down the appropriations for the benefit of the Capital city, who would adopt a policy of stinginess. If there be such we do not believe for a moment that they represent the will and wish of the American

Oil for Warships

All our warships may come to use oil for fuel, if the experience of the Utah on her trip from New York to Boston is any criterion. This battleship, though imperfectly adapted for burning oil, found that the liquid fuel worked perfectly when sprayed over a thin bed of coal, and was preferable in nearly every way.

The most obvious fact of the experiment was that the Utah, by burning oil, was able to make her contract speed at will, and at less expense than if she had burned coal. But there are other important considerations, such as these: With oil for fuel, the largest dreadnought can get up steam in thirty minutes, instead of taking three or four hours to get under way. With her bunkers filled with oil, the Utah could steam 20,000 miles at full speed, instead of only 5000 or 6000 miles carrying her own coal. The oil makes hardly any smoke, so that it is much more difficult for an enemy to discover an oil-burner ship, and get her range. There is less wear and tear on a ship when there is no handling of coal. It is easier to keep the ship clean. There is less mechanism needed, and fewer men, and the temperature of the fire rooms is cool enough for comfort.

If, as the officers of the Utah declare, the use of oil adds 100 per cent to the efficiency of such a battleship, aside from the comfort and incidental conveniences of such fuel, the government is likely to proceed at once fitting present vessels for burning oil, and providing for such fuel in those built hereafter. And by such a device our lamentable lack of colliers and coaling stations will be largely overcome.—Boston Traveler.

Chicago and Baltimore

"They do say" Chicago has the all on the republican national convention. The national committee at its meeting here next month will decide the question. No spirited contest has taken place, and predictions as to the Windy city are based on her ability to properly care for her body. She's got the ball, she's got the room, and got the hotels, she's got it.

Well, if the convention is held here no candidate will be favored by the choice. The President's name is near. So is Mr. La Follette's, and Iowa, where Mr. Cummings lives and has his being, is a neighbor. What is called insurgent is strong in the middle territory, is also are the conservatives. Chicago would afford a fair field for a struggle over both platforms and candidates.

Such a field, there and elsewhere, should be provided, for whether in emergency appears on the scene, or weak it should have an honest hearing. Later will come the necessity for union at the polls. What is done by the convention must be approved by a united party, the chances of success will be slim. A campaign made on the hope of divisions in the democratic party would be an exhibition of recklessness. One republican vote in the land is worth two democratic votes at the bush.

While Baltimore's chances for the democratic convention are considered good they might be better. Fortunately there is time to improve them. She deserves success. She is prepared to play host, and has much of interest to show visitors. A thriving city, newly built on old foundations; a hospitable people; experienced in entertaining; railroad connections and hotel accommodations adequate in every way. Baltimore presents persuasive claims of every sort.

Geographically, she is all the democratic aspirants for the presidency could desire. None would be at a disadvantage there. Gov. Wilson lives within speaking distance. Gov. Harmon and Gov. Marshall live but a little farther away. Speaker Clark will probably be in Washington, gavel in hand, when the convention meets. If New York should develop a favorite son, between now and convention time, a few hours of railroad travel will put him and his friends on the scene.

Baltimore should be chosen. It has been a long time since she entertained such a body. The country west of the Alleghenies has been monopolizing these convention favors since the war, and acquitting itself well of its undertakings. I must be confessed. Chicago, Cincinnati, St. Louis, Minneapolis, Kansas City and Denver have upheld the reputation of that great section for enterprise and push.

But this is a good time to "come across" the mountain range. The coast be remembered again. She too, has been making progress, and would be fittingly recognized in the selection of the Maryland metropolitan.—Washington Star.

The Matter With the Navy

A shocking condition of the fleet is again the obsession of that marine artist who, some time ago, alarmed his fellow countrymen by telling them that an enemy could shoot through the armor-plate of our proud battleships with a bean-blower. His present grievance is not directed at those who design the ships but at Congress. There is less danger of a recall from this attack manifestly. Congress notoriously is a doddering old institution always behind-hand when it does anything at all, and everybody is privileged to knock it. It is the open season for year around on Congress. There are some grounds for this truculent critic's latest manifesto, as it happens. The fleet is not equipped as it should be with cruising supports for the fighting line. Congress has yet to express by adequate provision a grasp of the principle that the line needs a variety of auxiliaries, as an army has skirmishers, scouts, spies, and supply trains. These necessities may continue to be urged, however, without flying into hysterics to force home the argument. The reasonable feeling is that the country is safe, though the naval establishment is not in a state of efficiency such as to satisfy a marine artist of which may not be so material—accredited naval experts.

Neither Congress nor the country will become excited over the statement for instance that for each battleship there is not in service a certain number of torpedo boat destroyers; nor that, for each squadron there is not provided a certain assortment of noncombatant auxiliaries. Congress may be pardoned if it does not accept at once, in all details, this or any other conception of an ideal fleet. We are told that other nations have each completely fleets, but it is not clear that the test of battle would show them any more efficient than our own would be with a relatively trifling dressing up. Disregarding the element of cruising supplies it is yet to be shown except on paper, that battleships need any help to fight a battle or to bring on an engagement. "Congress thinks that battleships alone make a fighting fleet," declares this sapient critic. Congress, most apparently thinks nothing of the sort. It has provided the fighting ships and some of the other kind as well; though too few of the latter no doubt. The program allowed has been sensible ever. If it has lacked completeness at successive stages; in that the fighting ships have been provided first.

"What if I tell you that, should his fleet go to war tomorrow, the biggest part of it might be crippled perhaps sunk, before it got very far?" cries our artist. He describes how his surprising calamity would easily be induced. As "nothing of the kind" happened in war it will be difficult to feel concerned for the fate of the great armament that recently landed the Hudson supposing that an unimaginable Power sent an idea set across the ocean intent on turning the cunning trick. Mr. Taft's uttering generally is quoted with approval as a text for this feverish speculation. "Unless a navy is maintained at the highest possible state of efficiency it is a needless extravagance." This of course, will stand the test by historical facts. Except for a period of the Civil war and our navy has never approached "the highest possible state of efficiency." That, when actually employed for the defense of the country, it has not proved a needless extravagance, is fairly well illustrated by the circumstances that the Navy has been "ever victorious." There is no occasion for condoning the simple issues of its present condition with rubbishy speculations.—Providence Journal.

VICTIM OF TARRING PARTY TESTIFIES

Lincoln Centre, Kan., Nov. 21 Mary Chamberlain the Shady Bend school teacher, facing Edward Riccord, her decoy, and three other men charged with complicity in the attack upon her, took the stand this afternoon and told of her experience on the lonely roadway on the night of the now famous tarring party of which she was the victim in August.

The court room was crowded as the probability that Miss Chamberlain would testify today had attracted persons from a distance of 20 miles.

Miss Chamberlain, who sat yesterday through the trial with no sign of emotion, was at the courtroom early today dressed in black.

Miss Chamberlain told with minute detail the story that men and women in this and adjoining counties had with dreaded and anxiously awaited.

She said that on Aug. 7 Ed Riccord invited her to attend a dance at Beverly and she accepted. She said that on the way his talk to her was improper, and that she told him that she desired to go back home. They started back to Shady Bend.

"What happened on the way back to Iowa?" was asked Miss Chamberlain.

"Five masked men took me from the buggy. Three of them carried me around behind the buggy, threw me down and smeared tar over my shoulders and my lower limbs."

"Did you recognize any of them?"

"Not then?"

"Where was Riccord?"

"He was over by the fence."

"Did he assist you in any way?"

"He did not, though I called him two or three times."

"Did Riccord accompany you back to town?"

"He did."

"Did you see any men in the road as you were going back to town?"

"Yes, four of them."

"Did you call Riccord's attention to them?"

"Yes."

"What did he do?"

"Whipped up the horse."

The witness said not only were her shoulders and limbs, but also her breast and arms smeared with tar. Her clothing, she testified, was ruined.

Returning to the ride home ward with Riccord, prosecutor McCaleb asked the witness if she knew any of the men she met in the road.

"Yes, I recognized Sherrill Clark, A. N. Simms and James Booze," she answered.

"Did these men treat you roughly?" asked the attorney for the defense.

"Yes," she answered.

"They were not very rough, but I suffered ill effects from their treatment."

"Didn't you testify in a justice's court hearing that you were not injured?"

"No, sir, I said no bones were broken."

After a few more questions the defense closed the cross-examination of Miss Chamberlain with the privilege of recalling her.

When Miss Chamberlain left the stand the defense opened by introducing eight character witnesses, all testifying that the defendants were of good reputations.

James Booze testified that the defendants, Simms and Schmidt as well as himself, had advised some of the men concerned not to tar the girl. Booze admitted that he accompanied the three defendants.

A. N. Simms was the first defendant to take the stand. He corroborated Booze's statement regarding conversations with the defendants. The tenor of his testimony was to make it appear that the plot was not to tar Miss Chamberlain, but to spy upon her and Riccord on the buggy ride.

A DAY NURSERY

Plans for the Establishment of One in the Exchange Building on State Street

Capt. W. L. Weatherly of the Salvation Army is taking steps to have a day nursery established in this city at an early date.

The day nursery will be established if possible in the Exchange building on State street for which the branch has made overtures to the city. Thus far the city has extended only a cold mitt for the proposition. Captain Weatherly says that the day nursery will care for the children of the city whose parents are forced to work to support themselves and families or who seek employment because of lack of activities to attract their attention. The children would be regaled in the clothing of the institution and would be cared for until the arrival of the mother at night when her work was completed. Captain Weatherly says that the city is at present unable to provide a sufficient number of domestics.

Thanksgiving dinner will be served to the poor in Exchange building. At night Mrs. Mary I. Woods, chairman of the information board of the American Federation of Woman's club, will talk to the children, and W. T. Trafton will show stereopticon views. The Christmas charity of the army will be the distribution of baskets containing food, clothing and fuel among the poor.

A CLEVER ACT

A Fine Program Being Presented at Music Hall

A strong vaudeville program is being presented at Music Hall this week with Baker and Murray as the headliners in pleasing songs and dances. Miss Lillian Carter does a pleasing colored impersonation, and her rich voice is heard to good advantage. Miss Beatrice Drew is also there with the goods and is making a decided hit with her spotlight songs. Five reels of the latest and best motion pictures constitute the other part of this big show for a little money.

Miss Annie Belle Darlington of New Haven is the guest of friends.

KITTERY LETTER

Kittery, Nov. 22.

The Pine Hill Whist club met last evening with Mrs. Thomas Morrow of Rogers road. Before going to Mrs. Morrow's they called on Mrs. Raymond Gerry, daughter of one of the members and who was recently married, and presented her a half dozen teaspoons and her dozen tumblers. Mrs. Gerry and her mother were both taken by surprise. The next meeting of the club will be with Mrs. E. E. Otis.

Mrs. Charles Glidden and daughter Bernice returned Tuesday from a visit to Boston. Miss Glidden resumed her duties in Portsmouth this morning.

Samuel Caswell and Fred Ronads have returned from a gunning trip to Bingham, Me.

Mrs. Nellie Hobbs of South Berwick has been called here by the illness of her mother, Mrs. Lizzie Gatchell, who lies seriously ill at her home on Government street and small hopes are entertained for her recovery.

Mr. and Mrs. James Able of Rogers Road are receiving congratulations on the birth of a son.

The Shapleigh school at North Kittery is closed for two weeks on account of the many cases of whooping cough.

Miss Gladys Seavey will hold her session of dancing school this afternoon at Grange hall. She has changed her day from Thursday to Wednesday.

Mrs. Lottie Tufts has moved into the house on Woodlawn avenue recently vacated by Harry Wyman and family.

Piscataqua chapter, No. 90, Order of the Eastern Star, will hold a meeting this evening in Odd Fellows' hall.

Mr. and Mrs. Willard Chick are moving from the residence of Mrs. Chick's father, near the First Methodist church, to the farm vacated last winter by Edward Moulton. For this reason Mrs. Chick has been absent from her school duties at the Wentworth school, instead of illness as was stated in this column.

Miss Hazel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Waggatt, is ill at her home with tonsillitis.

Whipple Lodge I. O. G. T., meets this evening at Grange Hall.

About twenty friends of Miss Isabel Goggins gave her a surprise party on Tuesday evening. The evening was pleasantly passed with games and music. Refreshments were served.

The Noisy Dozen Whist club met Tuesday afternoon with Mrs. John Green of Love lane.

Mrs. J. Perley Putnam and daughter, Miss Rita, were guests of relatives here Monday.

Quamphagan Lodge, of South Berwick visited Constitution lodge, K. of P., last evening, and worked the rank of esquire on candidates. A collation followed the meeting.

Now is the season of porcine executions, and the piercing squeals of unlucky victims constantly rend the morning air throughout the village. But be careful, neighbor, not to stick your pig on the ebb tide, for in the old tradition amounts to a row of pins, you are likely on the ebb to lose one-third of the meat by shrinkage. There may be no truth in the old superstition, but smarter men than you or I have deemed it worth while to consult the tide before ending the lives of their porkers. Batten be sure than sorry!

Mr. and Mrs. Henry S. Moulton are rejoicing over the birth of a granddaughter, born to Mr. and Mrs. Joseph A. Bailey of York.

Don't forget the sale and entertainment to be given by the Ladies' Aid Society at the Free Baptist church Wednesday and Thursday evenings.

The condition of Mrs. Bessie Chick is improved after a slight relapse.

Work on the collar of George A. Kimball's new house was begun on Tuesday.

Hiram Tobey, Sr., has returned to North Hampton for the remainder of the week.

The Fancy Work Club will meet

on Thursday at the home of Mrs. Chester Pierce.

Mrs. James Trefethen is confined to the house by illness.

The many friends of Haven Miller are glad to learn that he is convalescing from his long illness.

John Randall is at work at the navy yard.

The thanks of this community are due to Mr. C. P. Bodwell for his recent convincing refutation in the Boston Herald of the many insipid slurs in this navy yard lately indulged in by certain of the Boston press. Judging from past experience, however, it will be but a short time before the usual campaign of misrepresentation is begun again.

Word was received here this morning of the death of Harold W. Frisbee, son of Mrs. Marcia Frisbee, at the state insane asylum at Augusta, where he was conveyed last summer.

Masses of Mussels.

The mussel's natural home is at the bottom of the sea, never in very deep water and yet deep enough to be nearly always covered at any state of the tide. For preference it likes a bed of sand or smooth, fine gravel. To this bed it attaches itself by the ligature-like growth on the shell known as the byssus, and thus, standing on end with its point to the bottom of the sea, it forms itself in a dense mass so closely packed together that not an inch of the sea floor is visible. As new ones come they do not extend the ground space occupied, but range themselves one on top of another in layers, all firmly fixed together by a living cord of connection. In this position they are exposed to many dangers. A heavy storm may break the mass to pieces and disperse its constituents far and wide. An alteration of the tidal current may sweep a sand avalanche upon them and bring about their end by suffocation. Even if they escape these dangers it is certain that bottom layers will be crushed out of existence.

The Vegetable Lamb.

One of the most remarkable natural fetiches in the world is the Chinese kouchi, called by some people "the vegetable lamb." It is regarded by the natives of China as something supernatural. They believe it to be part vegetable and part animal. The plant certainly bears a resemblance to an animal, although it might be taken for a pig as readily as a lamb. Kouchi is composed principally of the plant known as rhizome and sprouts from seed. After attaining its full height roots and tendrils spring from the fiber and grow downward until they enter the earth. It is this peculiar formation which has caused it to be regarded with so much awe. The Chinese claim that after it has reached its full size it ceases to be vegetable and turns animal, feeding upon the tender shoots of plants which grow near it.—Waharapa Times.

A Submerged Crater.

During the explosion of the volcano of Krakatoa, in the strait of Sunda, in 1883, a large part of the island of Krakatoa was blown away, and the sea took its place. Not long afterward measurements were made of the shape and depth of the cavity left covered with water at the northern end of the disrupted island. The results were published by Dr. Verbeek in 1886. Later Dr. Von Dammelen has remeasured the submerged basin formed by the explosion, and he finds that within the partial ring formed by the three remaining islands of the Krakatoa group there is a central basin, oval in shape and with a fairly level floor, having a depth over a considerable area of 820 feet. Comparison with the former measurements indicates that there has been no change in the sea floor during the intervening years. There is no sign of volcanic activity.

Preserving Spiders' Webs.

Naturalists employ an ingenious method of preserving all kinds of spiders' webs. The webs are first sprayed with an atomizer with a thin solution of artists' shellac, and then, should they be of the ordinary geometric form, they are pressed carefully against a glass plate, the supporting strands at the same time being severed. After the shellac solution has dried the plates carrying the webs can be stored away in a cabinet. Even dome shaped webs may be preserved in their original form by spraying them with shellac and then allowing them to dry before removal from their supports. Many spiders' webs are very beautiful, and all are characteristic of the species to which they belong, so that from a scientific standpoint their permanent preservation is very desirable.

MAGAZINE WRITER A SUICIDE

Boston, Nov. 21.—Harry Kellok Durland, the magazine writer and personal friend of Upton Sinclair, according to Medical Examiner Magrath, who directed a chemist to analyze the contents of the stomach of the young writer, Durland was 31 years old and widely known. He was after her husband, swallowed the fatal dose in a train at the South Terminal early Sunday morning as he was about to depart for New York city with his wife.

The Durlands were planning to separate. They were leaving for New York with the intention of permanently settling their domestic difficulties when the author took the poison. His wife witnessed the act, but at the moment it did not occur to her that Durland was swallowing poison. Immediately after taking the poison Durland asked his wife for a drink of water. Then he collapsed.

In the police ambulance from La Grange street Police Station he was removed to the relief Hospital, where he was pronounced dead upon his arrival.

A post-mortem examination conducted by Medical Examiner Magrath Sunday did not satisfy the coroner, so he sent the contents of the stomach to a chemist for an analysis. Today the chemist made his report. He found cyanide of potassium in the stomach.

Durland was despondent. He dreaded the separation from his wife and had written to friends telling them of his grief and his desire to die. To other persons he had talked of killing himself. Durland was a writer of prominence. He wrote many nature stories and fre-

A WELL TRAINED DOG DEAD.

Rex, the handsome and well trained dog of Police Officer Robinson, is dead, and the owner and his wife feel that they have lost a faithful friend. Rex was one of the most intelligent dogs in this city and so well trained by his master that he would do anything. It was not at all uncommon for Mrs. Robinson to send Rex to the Herald office for a newspaper. He would come to the door, bark until admitted and wait until he was given a paper and then he would trot off to his mistress again. It was the same way at home, he would go and fetch anything Officer Robinson or his wife told him to. Rex was keen on rounding up the hens and driving them into the coop for the night and at home was Officer Robinson's first assistant, and when the officer was on duty, his wife's faithful companion.

OLD-TIME REMEDY DARKENS THE HAIR

Gives Color, Lustre to Faded and Gray Hair

From time immemorial sage and sulphur have been used for the hair and scalp. Almost everyone knows of the value of such a combination for darkening the hair, for curing dandruff and falling hair and for making the hair grow.

In olden times the only way to get a hair tonic of this sort was to brew it in the home fireplace, a method which was troublesome and not always satisfactory. Nowadays almost every up-to-date druggist can supply his patrons with a ready-to-use product, skillfully compounded in perfectly equipped laboratories. The Wyeth Chemical Company of New York put up an ideal remedy of this sort called Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy and authorize druggists to sell it under guarantee that the money will be refunded if it fails to do exactly as represented.

If you have dandruff or if your hair is turning gray or coming out, don't delay buy a bottle of this remedy today, and see what a few days' treatment will do for you.

This preparation is offered to the public at fifty cents a bottle, and is recommended and sold by all druggists.

Special Agent G. E. Philbrick, 45 Congress street.

LOCAL DASHES

Candidates for city offices are beginning to show themselves.

There will be at least one good football game here on Saturday.

The crossing gates at the Bartlett street crossing are at last realized.

There were two drunks and two lodgers on the police blotter last night.

The merchants are beginning to show up Christmas goods. Help out by shopping early.

With good sleighing this winter, Richards avenue will return to its old fame as a speedway.

While the woods are full of gunners there were not nearly as many licenses taken out this year as last.

The Morley Button Factory is fast being completed. There is still some work to be finished on one building.

With the ice ponds full, the skaters are hoping for good skating by Thanksgiving day. A cold spell is promised.

The biggest building plan for years is promised next spring, and when there are houses enough to go around, rents will drop to normal.

The Elks are to have the Bucks and Bill bowling tournament again this winter. The members will be divided into two teams.

Miss Grace George, has always been a favorite with Portsmouth theatre goers and she is sure of a big audience on Thursday evening.

Free: The first ten Ladies' purchasing goods to the amount of $15.00 at the American Cloak Co.'s Sale will each be given a pretty house dress.

In police court on Tuesday afternoon, James Corey and Harry Slater, two soldiers, were charged with assault. Corey was discharged and Slater paid a fine of $4 and cost.

The grade which had to be run for the paving on Bow and Ceres streets, was a fine piece of engineering work. At the best it is one of the worst streets in the city and once fixed it will go a good way to give a better impression of the city to people coming in on the electric road.

The suggestion of the Dover Democrat that Portsmouth and Dover High play off the disputed game at Central Park in Dover on Thanksgiving day, sounds just like that paper. It would appear that the right way would be to play the game on some mutual grounds with competent officials.

"BEN HUR" AT THE BOSTON THEATRE

Crowded houses, unlimited enthusiasm and a wonderful appreciation of the new and greater production of "Ben Hur" at the Boston Theatre have marked the third week of this remarkable Twentieth Century religious-historical drama. The thirteenth year of the presentation of this play in Boston has been marked with the greatest success that has ever been met with in the history of the American stage.

The scenic investiture, the colossal conception and the marvelous effects that have been produced by taking advantage of all the modern accessories to stagecraft have produced an ensemble that has been pronounced unequalled in the history of modern stage craft. The sensational chariot race has been emphasized by the unequalled spectacle of twenty horses in five quadruple teams plunging at full speed after the stage in the arena at Antioch given the appearance of one of the most exciting races of modern times.

The company which is appearing in this remarkable production is the finest that has yet been seen in any previous production of "Ben Hur," including as it does Richard Hurler in the title role, William J. Kelly as Messala, Marion Barney as Iras, Cecil Kern as Esther and Oscar Adye as Simonides, the faithful slaves and the richest merchant in Antioch.

JAPAN'S BOOKS ALL ALIKE

Originality Not Considered a Virtue in the Mikado's Land.

The position of literary men in Japan differs in many special respects from that which is accorded writers of prominence in the western world. writes Paul S. Reinsch in the North American Review. The individuality of literary fame and literary personality in its various aspects have not been developed in the Orient to nearly the same extent as in the west. The great books to which men return again and again for guidance and inspiration have been written thousands of years, and those men who earned fame thereafter won their laurels by writing commentaries upon the classics. No merit attached to originality. Moreover, most writings were anonymous. Especially if they were original was it advisable that the author should not make his personality too prominent. While learning was always respected, authorship never had the position in Japan and other oriental countries that it has enjoyed in the west from the Greeks down to the present.

The Japanese mind will excel in the future in many directions, but the greatest development may be expected in those activities for which racial and social experience has best prepared the intellect. A strong but selective realism in literature, delicate word painting, the successful search for mastery over the forces of nature, a grasp of social and political relationships—these are among the things we may expect from the Japan of the future.

TACT OF AN ACTOR.

Sothern's Happy Thought and the Unruly Gallery Gods.

It was in the year 1803 or 1804. During the summer months Sothern, with John T. Raymond and several other well known actors, occupied the local theater of a seaside summer resort, to which he and his company drew a household of people several nights in the week to hear and see them act. He really was in preparation for their next winter's New York season—the most important of their plays.

The little building had, of course, a gallery, and in the gallery the "gods" became so obstreperous on occasions that it was with great difficulty the play could be proceeded with. The ringleader, a well known rough of the town, was a man named Bill Hauraban. One night a happy inspiration seized Sothern. Having learned the name of this prominent member of the rowdy element, he addressed him in the midst of the most uncivilly noises as follows: "Mr. Hauraban, will you be good enough to take charge of the gallery and keep order for me? I shall feel very grateful."

The result was magical. Bill became at once an official of the theater and as such cracked the heads of a few of his erstwhile fellow rioters with such good effect that it was only a little time before the best of order prevailed.

A Matter of Business.

There is a reason for everything, even a train news agent's reluctance to pass through the cars with his packet of newspapers first. A woman who had traveled fifty miles out of New York before she had a chance to buy the afternoon paper she had neglected to provide herself with said to the boy who finally appeared with papers: "Why do you always come through first with books and then magazines and leave the newspapers until the last?"

"Why?" exclaimed the astonished boy. "Because it's business. If I came through first with papers everybody would buy a paper and read that all through the trip and leave me with all these dollar books and twenty-five cent magazines on my hands."—New York Press.

Getting Rid of Fear.

"What is meant by autosuggestion?" writes a correspondent. The phrase simply signifies self suggestion to good ends. For instance, if not particularly disinclined to do something one ought one may conquer the disinclination by resolutely saying over words expressing the necessity of doing the thing at once and with pleasure. The person who is afraid to go upstairs in the dark may, it is said, overcome this fear by saying, "I am not afraid; darkness is friendly; nothing can hurt me." The underlying idea is that the mind is the real ruler of the body and that by allowing the mind to take command of a situation from the higher and not the lower point of view, all may be vanquished and good accomplished.—Christian Herald.

EXETER

Affairs will be busy in Exeter, circles in the next two weeks as the usual election of officers will be held at the meeting of "Glimmer" grange, Dec. 4. Following that, on Dec. 6, the annual meeting of the East Rockingham Pomona grange will be held at the grange hall here.

The Pomona grange was organized in Exeter and each annual meeting when the officers are elected is always slated for Exeter. It usually occurs in the early part of December. The grange hall here now is an attractive one, it being the former City hall on Elm street, and has been fitted for grange work for the past year. An interesting part of the program at the meeting last evening was the paper on "Hetty Green," by Maude B. Baker.

At the meeting of Swansport lodge, K. P. last evening, the rank of esquire was worked and at the following meeting Nov. 27, the ranks of Knight will be worked. This is the longest ceremony on the ritual. Refreshments and a social period will follow the secret work.

With a total membership of about sixty voices the Choral union under the leadership of Henri Blaisdell of Boston is holding weekly rehearsals for its first concert which, however, is some time in January. This is the second season that the union has been in existence, and last year there were two pleasing concerts rendered.

An attraction at the First Congregational church this evening will be the cantata, "Under the Palms," for which rehearsals have been held in the course of the past month.

Local alumni of Harvard and Yale yesterday received their tickets for the Harvard-Yale game which is to be played at Cambridge next Saturday, and there were many who applied. It is probable that more of the precious pastebounds came to Exeter than any other place of comparative size in the state. Exeter has many Harvard alumni, but a few from Yale.

A series of revival meetings began at the Advent church last evening by C. H. Merrill of Biddeford, Me. and will continue until Dec. 3.

Frank C. Higgins and Fred Tuck the latter formerly of Kingston, left yesterday for an automobile trip to Virginia. They will be gone about two weeks.

The dividend interest payment to be made in Boston in December will according to approximate estimates, aggregate $9,217,091, bringing the total disbursement for the current calendar year up to $198,209,706. The December payments compare with $9,225,500 in the corresponding month last year, and the total for the year stands against $201,407,647 in 1910.

GOLD DUST makes dish-washing easy

The use of a little Gold Dust in your dish-water will make your dishes whiter, sweeter and cleaner than they ever can be without it. Unlike soap, Gold Dust does more than clean the surface. It goes deep after germs and hidden food particles, and sterilizes everything it touches.

Gold Dust does all the hard part of the work without your assistance, because it begins to dissolve and clean the moment it touches the water.

When you have to wash dishes 1095 times a year, the Gold Dust method of saving half your time and half your labor means something.

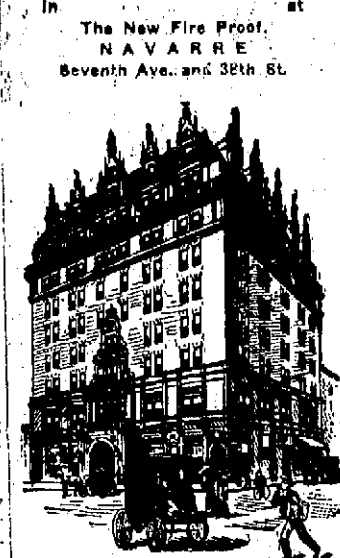

Gold Dust is sold in 5c size and large packages. The large package means greater economy.

OWNER OF BOSTON NATIONALS IS DEAD

New York, Nov. 21.—William Heyburn Russell, president of the Boston National League Baseball Club, died suddenly at his home at 115
West 97th street in this city this morning.

Mr. Russell had been in poor health for the past year. Angina pectoris was the immediate cause of his death, which occurred this morning. He had been confined to the house for the past two weeks.

Mr. Russell leaves a widow, five daughters and one son. The date of the funeral, which will be private,
has not been set. The disposition of his interest in the Boston Baseball Club will be made known when the will is made public.

HAL CHASE MAY RESIGN.

Report That He Will Do So After
He Has Had Conference With Owner Farrell.

New York, Nov. 21.—It was reported today that Hal Chase will tender his resignation as manager of the New York Americans shortly after he has had a conference with owner Frank Farrell. At the same time it became generally known that Harry Wolverton of California
would succeed Chase.

The first intimation that there would be a change in the management of the Highlander came in a dispatch from California about six weeks ago. Bill Lange, the former Chicago player, gave out part of the contents of a letter in which Frank Farrell asked him what he thought of Harry Wolverton for manager.

Mr. Farrell denied at the time that he had opened negotiations with Wolverton, but a week ago
came report from San Antonio where the baseball magnates were holding a convention, that Wolverton had been asked to assume the management of the Yankees.

Chase, it is announced, will be retained on the team and will continue to play first base. Chase was appointed manager of the Yankees about six weeks before the close of the 1910 season, after the row between George Stallings and Chase in which Mr. Farrell sided with Chase.

LITERARY NOTES

The Youth's Companion in 1912
No other paper is quite like The Youth's Companion. It is taken in half a million homes where the choice of reading is made with a much care as the choice of friends.
It entertains, it satisfies the keenest for thrilling adventure, it is rich in wit and humor, and all this while its purpose is to be to every reader a help onward—never a disturbance.

Among the contributors to the 1912 volume will be General Baden
Powell, the defender of Mafeking, and founder of the Boy Scouts, Walter Camp, the celebrated football coach, Hudson Maxim, the inventor of high explosives, Governor Harmon of Ohio, Percival Lowell, the astronomer, Jacob A. Riis, Marie Harland, Harriet Prescott Spofford, Ray, Francis E. Clark, founder of the Society of Christian Endeavor,
etc., etc.

The serial stories alone, which will follow one another the year through, will be worth $1.50 each when published in book form. By subscribing to The Companion you get them all and 250 other complete stories for $1.75, and the Article
Miscellany, Boy's Page, Girl's Page, Household Page, etc., put in for good measure. Now is the time to subscribe, sending $1.75 for the 52
weekly issues of the new volume for on January 1, 1912, the subscription price will be advanced to $2.00.
Do not forget that the new subscriber for 1912 receives free The Companion's Calendar for 1912, lit-ographed in ten colors and gold, and all the issues for the remaining weeks of 1911 free from the time
subscription is received.

Making Good

It was Barrie long ago who wrote
a little essay, called "The Coming Dramatist," in which he bewailed
the fact that England had no great playwrights. He dwelt upon the honor and the money reward that would come to him who should deserve them. In conclusion he said:
"When the dramatist appears scores of companies will be found capable of acting his pieces satisfactorily. Nor do we fear he would be unappreciated. Trash is often a success on the stage, thanks to the talent of one or two of the players;

but the average audience recognizes good work, and would rejoice to have the opportunity of commending
it. All that is needed is the dramatist.

After setting this down Barrie went ahead and became the dramatist himself. A few years after he wrote his essay, England had experienced the period in which Pinero, Shaw, Phillips, Galsworthy and as many others were reflecting credit
on her stage, and the young critic Barrie had become the leader of them all.—Editorial in Collier's for Popular Mechanics Magazine For December

A remarkable record for the year
1911 is concluded by Popular Mechanics Magazine with its December number—just out. During the year 1,412 articles and 3,534 illustrations have appeared in its pages, affording a vividly interesting, pictorial history of current progress in science and mechanics, in twelve monthly installments. The December magazine, with its 235 pictures and 235 stories, every one "written so you can understand it," is slightly above the average in variety of topic. An annual amount of space is devoted to the subject of aviation. Victor Lougheed, an eminent authority, discusses the streamline form in airplane designing, declaring that "the prevalence in nature of the streamline form is alone sufficient evidence of its vast superiority for its purpose." The recent experiments by the Wright Brothers
with a glider at Kill Devil Hills, N.
C., are described in another professionally illustrated article, which explains how they succeeded in making their "remarkable hovering and rising flights into strong winds. Pages of illustrations show the wreck of the English naval airship, the Vauve-mans-Atlantic dirigible, and the two new Blériot aeroplanes in an editorial. H. H. Windsor dwells on the "Airmen's Greatest Fear," which he designates as "the ridicule of an unrecognizable crowd who have paid their admission and insist on their sound of flesh." Mr. Windsor discusses, also, the "English Post Office," "Industrial Character of the Navy," "The Olympic Accident," and "Climate as an Asset." In the last named striking a particularly optimistic note.

GRACE GEORGE.

Splendid opportunities are afforded Grace George in her new comedy
"Just to Get Married," which comes to the Portsmouth Theatre next Thursday night. Those who have seen Miss George in "Divorçons,"
"A Woman's Way," "School for Scandal," and other plays know with what a nicety and delicacy of touch
she handles comedy. A reviewer

GRACE GEORGE.

once remarked "Grace George can extract more humor from an ordinary line than any comedienne I know of can get out of what they call the sure telling laughs of their play." Miss George's coming is an event of more than ordinary interest, as she brings with her the New York Playhouse Company, which is organized for the purpose of, according to revised plans, succeeding the New Theatre. With Miss George will be seen Lyn Harding, the famous English actor, who is making his first American tour under W. A.
Brady's direction. The rest of the cast is one of distinction, and in keeping with the high standard for which The Playhouse Company was organized.

THEIR TOMBSTONE.

It Proved to Be a Rich Find and Became a Town's Name.

There is a certain natural pride felt after success has come. In wearing the epitaph given in contempt by those who prophesied failure. Instances are not uncommon of triumphant acts and parties and even nations retaining the very title first given them by their enemies. A case in point is Tombstone, Ariz. How did it come to have such a name? It was not borrowed or stolen from any other place on the globe nor even suggested by any novel or romance.

The story is that two young men,
brothers, when about to start from Tucson on a prospecting tour into the Dragon mountains, Sonora, or somewhere else were advised to give up the undertaking, for if they perished they would find neither mine nor fortunes.
But their "tombstones" instead. The boys bravely bade goodbye to their friends, though emphatically warned that they never would return alive.
The prospectors set off and, following the "blind trail," came to the plateau and made their camp. On examination they found a ledge of ore cropping out several feet, all marked and rich with the precious metal. "We have found our tombstone!" they exclaimed, and no other name would do to designate the camp.

The town has kept the name, which,
if not poetical, is certainly original. A valuable tombstone, too, it must be confessed, for the Schieffelin brothers sold their half interest in the mine and mill late in the eighties for something like a million dollars.—New York Press.

PORK AS FOOD.

Scandinavians Believe It Is Eaten Even
in Heaven.

In the sacred books of the Scandinavians pork is represented as the principal food even in heaven. It was the chief food of the Irish in the twelfth century and also of the Anglo-Saxons at an earlier period.

In France it was equally common,
and Charlemagne kept in his forests immense droves of pigs. Late in the sixteenth century there was a particular disease said to be caused by the quantity of pork eaten in Hungary,
and even at present the barbarous Lapps are passionately fond of it. In the middle of the sixteenth century
Philip II, when in England generally dined on bacon, of which he ate so much as frequently to make himself
very ill.

By a singular contradiction the African Mohammedans now "believe that a great enmity exists between pigs and Christians" (Mungo Park). Many medical authors have supposed that pork is particularly unwholesome in hot countries, but this requires confirmation, and it is certain that it is recommended by Arabian physicians and is more generally eaten both in Asia and Africa than is usually believed.
"The North American Indians are said to have a disgust for pork." Do-bell believes there is more pork eaten
in China than all the rest of the world put together.—Buckle's "History of Civilization."

The Word "Picnic."

Few people know the original meaning of the word "picnic." It is to be found set out in the London Times of a hundred years ago: "A picnic supper consists of a variety of dishes.
The subscribers to this entertainment
have a bill of fare presented to them, with a number against each dish. The lot which he draws obliges him to furnish the dish marked with him in his carriage or sends by a servant. The proper variety is preserved by the inputs of the maître d'hôtel, who forms the bill of fare. As the cookery is furnished by so many people of fashion, each strives to excel, and thus a picnic supper not only gives rise to much pleasant mirth, but generally can boast of the refinement of the art."

The Immensity of Nature.

They were on a trip in Switzerland
and had that day braved all dangers and ascended one of the highest points in the Alps. He was very fat, and as he stood panting and mopping his brow at the top of the mountain he turned to his wife and said, with pathos in his voice:

"See, dear, how small one is in the face of the immensity of nature."
"Small, indeed," answered his better half. "Why, you're standing in front of me, hiding the whole of Mont Blanc and the best part of the valley of Chamonix!"—Exchange.

She Knew It.

"I have decided to quit this company tonight," said the prima donna as she flooded into the manager's office.
"But my dear Miss Rivington," he protested, "we have nobody to take your place."
"That's why I have decided to quit
tonight."—Chicago Record-Herald.
